We Can Help

WHAT TYPE OF PAIN ARE YOU EXPERIENCING?

- Neck
- Back
- Arm
- Sciatica

- Neck

NECK PAIN TREATMENT

Neck pain can occur from the top of your shoulders to the bottom of your head. Neck pain symptoms may be mild to severe and may limit your range of motion.

There are a number of pain management treatment options that help reduce neck pain available at our practice.

Whether your chronic neck and shoulder pain is the result of an injury, pinched nerves or an underlying spinal condition, our physicians will develop a treatment plan designed to increase the quality of your life.

- Back

BACK PAIN TREATMENT

Back pain symptoms may include feelings of muscle ache, stabbing or shooting pain, stiff or limited flexibility in the back or lower back, inability to stand with proper posture and radiating pain down one or both legs.

Over 80% of Americans will experience back pain at some point in their lives. With so many of us struggling with back pain, it is no surprise that this debilitating condition is the #2 cause for people to miss work. Fortunately, the physicians at Commonwealth Spine and Pain Specialists successfully treat hundreds of patients suffering from back pain using minimally invasive techniques.

- Arm

RADIATING ARM PAIN TREATMENT

If you are experiencing pain radiating down your arm, the source of your arm pain may be from another area altogether, such as the neck. Our physicians will work to determine the root cause through a detailed medical history and evaluation.

- Sciatica

SCIATICA PAIN TREATMENT

Sciatica is a set of symptoms including pain that may be caused by general compression or irritation of one of five spinal nerve roots that give rise to each sciatic nerve, or by compression or irritation of the left, right or both sciatic nerves. The pain is felt in the lower back, buttock or various parts of the leg and foot.

Treatment for sciatica or sciatic symptoms often differs depending upon the underlying cause of the symptoms and pain levels. Our pain management experts can help you get back to the pain free life you deserve.
